

JUSTICE

PROMOTERS

BACKGROUND

In 2015-2016, the All Children Thrive Learning Network, Cincinnati Children's Hospital Medical Center (CCHMC), and Design Impact (DI) partnered with local residents to develop innovative ways to address community health.

The All Children Thrive Learning Network turned their initial focus towards housing. Research shows that housing quality has a major impact on the health of families. Parents in Avondale and Price Hill experience firsthand how these poor housing conditions can compromise the safety and health of their families. Some parents have learned how to directly address these housing issues by advocating for themselves.

However, there wasn't a formal way to share this expertise with other families. In order to leverage their lived experiences, residents created the Justice Promoters Project. The initiative was a formal way residents could use their leadership skills to become advocates and champions for affordable, quality housing.

RESULTS

Residents Completing "Decoding Your Lease" and Housing Questionnaire with Justice Promoters

MOST PROUD & WHY

- Justice Promoters (JP's) can assist residents with information that can help residents in Avondale and Price Hill have a good quality of life and prevent evictions
- Price Hill Hispanic residents feel safe talking to the JP's
- Justice Promoters themselves are building and increasing their confidence

GREATEST CHALLENGE

- Families not knowing they have tenant rights
- Tenant lease aren't accessible; rental office keep lease. JP's help tenants get a copy of their lease agreement
- Hispanics are afraid to meet with Justice Promoters. Hispanics believe JP's are Immigration and Customs Enforcement (ICE) and will get deported.
- Hispanics are afraid of being evicted if they speak to Justice Promoters
- Decoding form is too long thus people are reluctant to complete form due to their lack of understanding the lease information
- Rental lease is in English and some residences only speak Spanish
